ARE THE POWERS convinced that the assassination of thousands of Christians is necessary to their respective interests and ambitions? The complications are numerous and perplexing, but the slaughter of the innocents is a hideous crime for which they are largely responsible.

ANOTHER GOOD WAY.

FIRST EDITOR—"Do you have any trouble with poets?"
SECOND EDITOR—"No; I simply kill 'em right off."
FIRST EDITOR—"How?"
SECOND EDITOR—"Accept the first poem they present and offer fifty dollars for it. They usually drop dead on the spot from heart-failure, superinduced by shock."
FIRST EDITOR—"But suppose they don't drop?"
SECOND EDITOR—"Why, then I simply pretend to reconsider the matter, and that finishes the toughest of 'em."

NO PRECEDENT.

THE PROPHET of Elmira who says the judgment will come on the first day of the year is too mean and too wrong for serious consideration, and we suspect him of mixing both his dates and his beverages. We never knew such a thing to happen at that time.

BAD MAN.

HERR AHLWARDT, who wants to unite the working classes of this country against the Jews, has the same feeling that inspires the Turks and Kurds to the killing of Armenians and other Christians. Has it occurred to him that people here have a right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness?

A CRIME OF THE LAW.

THE MAGISTRATE of this town who sent an innocent young girl to the penitentiary, to be the companion of brutes and to the sacrifice of her good name, was guilty of a crime for which there ought to be no forgiveness, and if the girl had not been rescued the magistrate or the city ought to have been liable in heavy damages. Let us be thankful, for the sake of peace, that the girl was not one of the Hannigan family.

THE PENALTY OF MISFORTUNE.

THE PRESIDENT of France married a young woman whose father was a defaulter. The child was not born till after the crime. Faure married her knowing the facts, declaring that she should not be made to suffer for sins for which she was in no way responsible; and now there is an effort to impeach him for that matter of justice. We have some pretty bad politics here; but it is better than that of the politicians who, having got over the Panama-canal business, propose a crime that is meaner if not more villainous.

THE SITUATION.

THERE HAS as yet been no fight between Senator Chandler and the government of England, but the latter is now earnestly considering the demand of the senator for the passage of a second guard-ship. Meanwhile the senator, ably assisted by Don M. Dickinson, will keep a few eyes out to the condition of affairs in Cuba and Canada, and at the same time squint in the direction of Venezuela with the utmost patience and assiduity. Thus the opening of hostilities, notwithstanding the cavernous yawp of the gentleman from New Hampshire, will not come soon enough to interrupt the hilarity of the closing or the beginning of the impending year.

SHAKE!

THE FIRST RESOLUTION should be to the effect that the man will think the best thing possible of himself and of his neighbors. That will lead him to behave himself and thereby to think better of the world, which is pretty bad, but, after all, which has never expected to be perfect and is really doing as well as it can. Egotism is not well, but self-esteem means a tolerably good life in order to sustain that condition. We get more of our judgment from within than without, and if the origin of it is pure the charity that is wisdom follows as a natural result. Let us shake hands with the world, pronounce it a good thing, and sing and work and hope that it may be better in 'ninety-six than ever it was before.

JUDICIAL ADORATION OF ITSELF.

"OH, THE INJURY to the law!" sobbed Recorder Goff of this city, referring to a case of perjury which nearly resulted in sending a young man to prison for twenty years, and who was almost wholly responsible for the verdict of the idiotic jury to that effect. "I have no sympathy for you"—glaring at the young man with unutterable hatred and contempt—"but oh, the injury to the law!" Some persons think the law was made somewhat for the individual who helps to pay the cost of it and who really doesn't deserve to be convicted when he is innocent; but this man holds it to be higher than the angels and kisses his judicial robe every time he buttons it about his sacred form, no matter what innocence is convicted and what guilt goes free.

v. 30. c. 2

HOW A MAN QUIETS A BABY.

MANY articles appear in newspapers of the present day minutely describing the peculiar methods used by women to pacify cross children. Not long ago I had occasion to observe the way a man quiets a baby. For the benefit of those who are looking for something unique under the sun, I took down in my note-book a record of the plan.

It was on a crowded railroad train. The man was young, dark, handsome and manly-looking. The baby and her mamma had just come in the car, and she kept crying and trying to reach the door to go back to "papa." She could only toddle unsteadily down the aisle. Her mother could do nothing with her. The old ladies could do nothing to soothe her. She would not so much as look at the young women, who offered all manner of inducements.

The young man tried to win her to him, but she ignored his pleasant advances. He turned away until her outcries and frantic struggles became distracting to the young mother as well as to other passengers. Then he stretched out his hands, took the kicking, squalling infant, folded her in his arms and uttered the following monologue:

"Come here, little one, come. Are you afraid of me? Don't be afraid of me. I won't hurt you. Oh, no! I won't hurt you. Just look out at the river! See the water in the river? Look out there at the river. Did you ever see a river? Did you ever see the Kansas river? That is the Kansas river. Did you ever see water in a river? See the water in this river—and the sand in the river—and the boats on the river—and the birds flying over the river—and everything! and the man and the boats and the birds and the flowers and the grass and the trees and the boats and everything—and the river—just see the river!"

HIS DEDUCTION.

MR. EINSTEIN—"How far you vas got in your 'ritmetic, Jakey?"
JAKEY—"I vas in addition."
MR. EINSTEIN—"Vell, here vas an exampul. Fer instance, if I gif two tollars to von man, unt t'ree tollars to anudder man, vat would dot be?"
JAKEY—"Dot would be insanity, fadder."

For a moment the baby's face wore a look of astonishment, then brightened and turned toward the landscape with wondering eyes. Suddenly the tears returned and the wail was renewed. The young man's admonitions were continued. "Now—now—don't cry! Won't you tell me what your name is? What is your name, eh? What is your name, dear? What is your name, eh? eh? eh? eh? Say, eh? What is your name? Where are you going? Won't you tell me where you are going? Say, do you know where you are going? And won't you tell me where you are going? May I go with you? Eh? May I go with you? Say, say, may I go with you? Dare I go with you? Dare I, eh? Who am I? Do you know who I am? Who am I? Am I? Am I? Eh? Do I look like your papa? Say, do I? Do I look like your papa? Say, do I look like your papa? Dare I look like your papa? Dare I? Who is your papa? Am I your papa? Am I your papa? Dare I? Say, eh?"

The baby's sobs became softer and softer, and she silently looked up at her questioner. "Dare I look at my watch? Dare I? Say, dare I? Do I dare to look at my watch to see what time it is? There! That was a good girlie. Do you see the watch? Do you hear the watch? Do you hear its ticky-ticky-tick? Its ticky-ticky-ticky-ticky-tick? Ticky-tick, ticky-ticky-tick? Won't you be a good little girl? Do you like to be a good little girl? Don't you dare be a good little girl? Am I a good little girl? Say, am I a good little girl? Dare I be a good little girl? May I put on my glasses? Dare I put on my glasses? Dare I put on my glasses and read my newspaper? Say, dare I? Dare I put on my glasses? Glasses-glasses-glasses? Gasses-gasses-gasses? Lasses-lasses-lasses? Go to sleep, little one. Won't you go to sleep? Can't you go to sleep? Dare you go to sleep? Sleep, little one, sleep, pretty one—sleep."

The baby's grievance was forgotten. Her smile grew like the blossoming of bliss. Her breathing took on the sound of angels' wings. Her soul was sailing toward dreamland. Her face nestled down on the young man's breast and—she was fast asleep.

And that is how a man quiets a baby. KATE WARTHEN SEARCY.

KNOWLEDGE.

MR. CYNICAL—"Women are a delusion and a snare."
MISS GUSH—"It's curious how people will hug a delusion, though."

A "HEART"-BREAKING (POKER) ROMANCE.

As he called her to know his fate he convulsively clutched the be-gem-med little hand—but suddenly his expectant features were frozen into a look of agony. That raking gesture! that remorseless royal flush she so relentlessly displayed, all told him too truly that all was lost. A moment later Reginald Marks wandered into the street a broken man.

JUDGE'S FAVORITES.

YVETTE GUILBERT.

Yvette, divette! Yvette cherie!
'Twas au Concert Parisien
In gay Paree, you captured me,
And I'm your devoué since then.
Could I but tell you—Ah, diable!
You know que vous êtes adorable.

THE POINT OF VIEW.

Miss Gush—"Isn't it just lovely to listen to the chimes ringing the old year out and the new year in?"

Gayboy—"You bet. I wouldn't miss it for the world. I always go down there with a couple of fish-horns."

THE OLD GROOVE.

"ONE phrase I always know you by,"
She smiled with sweet tranquillity.
"And that?" he asked, and she replied,
"Executive ability."

"Indeed!" he murmured thoughtfully,
As silently he struck a match.
"Well, I must stop that with ex—ex—
Oh, with—executive dispatch."

ARTHUR JOY.

ANTICIPATION.

WHILE the sultan insultin' is trembling with fear
And affairs in his realm look murky,
We can surely look forward when Christmas is here
To see the partition of Turkey.

PLAUSIBLE.

Jaggles—"The living picture heard she was liable to arrest. That was why she put on the drapery."

Waggles—"Isn't that what you might call a stitch in time?"

WISE WORDS.

WHEN you need a friend don't pick out a man whose dog won't follow him.

The man who never told a lie hadn't better spoil his record by saying so.

Whatever may be said of a sweetheart, she can't be too good to be true.

The man is there, and he is feeling out of sight too.

DIFFERENT.

DANGEROUS DICK—"Ye tol' me yer father kep' a clothin'-store before he died, an' now I find out he was hung fer hoss-stealin'."

ARIZONA ABE (indignantly)—"I never said he kep' a clothin'-store; I said he was in the clothes line when he died. That's what they hung him with. Understan'?"

It never does any good to talk religion with a snap like that of a steel trap.

It is easy to discourage a man who realizes that he is not entitled to anything.

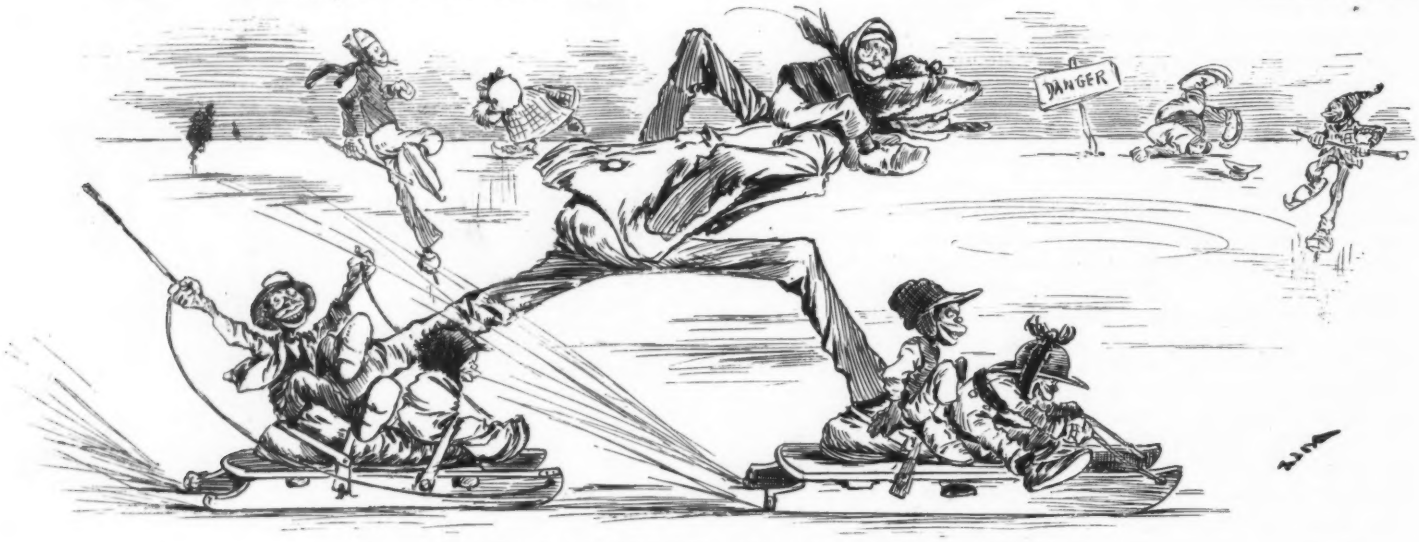
The woman who marries a man to reform him is a noble example of wasted effort.

When you call a fellow a gentleman and he gets his back up it's a sign that you are lying.

A widow is a woman who has buried her husband; a grass-widow is one who has simply mislaid hers.

The dignity of the law is interesting to contemplate. The men made the laws and then they represented justice by a woman with a bandage around her eyes. They have hoisted this travesty around on monuments and court-houses too much. Justice has been "going it blind" long enough.

WILL M. CLEMENS.



A SATISFACTORY SUBSTITUTE; OR, A SKATORIAL GENERAL.

Mr. Bigfoot Johnson could not afford skates for himself and family, but then he didn't allow a little matter like that to put a veto on the exhilarating and pleasurable pastime.

CORNELIA.

Mrs. O'Trout—"Since me Cornaylia tuk t' roidin' a boycoycle Oi've no pace av me loife. MISS STUYVESANT—"I wonder what's the matter with Southwick? He seems to have lost all his friends. Hasn't he any money now?"
MR. MADISON—"Yes; just as much as usual. But he has given up lending it."

NO FLIES ON HIM.
MONKEY—"What's the matter with my riding the wheel?——

——There ain t no flies on me."

But there was a tail.

A BUDDING DIPLOMAT.
ETHEL (aged six)—"I don't love you any more, grandpa."
GRANDPA—"Why not, Ethel?"
ETHEL—"'Cause I love you so much already that I couldn't love you any more if I tried. Please give me five cents?"

PLENTY OF ROOM.

Tenderfoot (to Texas ranchman after engaging his services and "viewing the landscape o'er")—"I accept your terms; but, really, where am I to sleep?"

Ranchman—"Sleep, man? Anywhere, anywhere! I've two hundred and fifty thousand acres lying round here loose. I don't care a snap where you sleep."

OH!

Uptodate—"Say, chappie, what is the difference between one of Washington Irving's tales and the Brooklyn trolley-car?"

Chappie—"Come again."

Uptodate—"One is a headless horseman and the other is a horseless headsman."

EXPERT TESTIMONY.

"HOW does that suit involving the consignment of baby-carriages come on?"

"Oh, I shall win."

"Pretty confident, are you?"

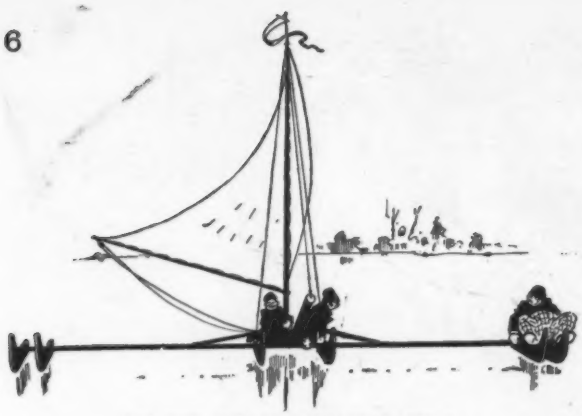
"Well, I should say so. I've told twenty Brooklyn men my side of the case and every one of them agrees with me."

A MATTER OF NECESSITY.

Rev. Mr. Saintly—"You say your sister chews gum? That's a terrible habit."

Willie—"She knows that as well as you do, sir; but she's trying to stop smoking."

WILLING TO STOP.
ETHEL—"But if you love me so much you certainly should be willing to give up your cigars after marriage."
ALGERNON—"Not much. I've been giving up my cigars to your papa and brother Bob for the last six months. After marriage I'll swear off on that."



AN ICE-BOAT CATASTROPHE.

"Fattie, you sit on the out-runner and keep us from capsizing."
FATTIE—"Oh, yes; and you take the comfortable part."

FATTIE (as she gets under way)—"Hi, there! Stop the boat! I don't like it up here!"

FATTIE (after the boat goes through the ice)—"Well, I can't kick. I'm better off up here than with those other suckers down there."

A TOAST.

LET others prate of broken hearts
And blanch their cheeks with sorrow,
Or sing of prudence-ventured darts
Returned with thanks to-morrow;
Mine be the task that warms and cheers
The blood that trickles through me
And stirs my sluggish pulses. Here's
To each dear girl who threw me!

'Tis said that they whose throbbing heads
Re-echo midnight folly
May drain new cups and leave their beds
Relieved of melancholy.
Then up, my heart! Slip off the fears
That well-nigh choked and slew thee.
Up, up, I say! Now, steady. Here's
To each dear girl who threw me!

Thee, Cupid, too, I fain would toast,
Nor weary with distresses.
Pray, sit thee down and cease to boast
Of former grand successes.
For what care I for vows and tears
Or all the shafts that flew thee?
God bless her, here's to her! And here's
To each dear girl who threw me!

FARMER BARNS—"Jest wan scent."

A NEW CONTRIBUTION TO SCIENCE.

THE latest explanation of the cause of earthquakes was given by a consequential-appearing colored man to an ebony-hued companion:

"Yo' see," said the expounder of science gravely, "dis heah earth trables round on hits axel mor'n twenty-five hund'ed miles in twenty-foh 'ouhs—dat am right sma't speed, I 'lows; an' hit tecks de atmospheah wif hit ebery time. If hit done fohget des onct, an' lebe hits atmospheah stan' still, at de speed it whizz round fro de air, I done reckon it wouldn' leabe a ha'r on a pusson's haid. So yo' all done see how 'tis. 'Dat dar ball am a-whizzin' fro space wif hits atmospheah—des wropped up in hit lak—an' hit am lak trablin' fro a fog whar dey ain't no sort ob steerin', an' now an' den de axel gits a leetle askew an' de earth flops outen de race-track an' runs ag'in a snag er somethin' lak dat, an' dat am what cause earthquakes. I desure yo' de time 's gwine come, w'en we jags aside fur 'nough, dat dey's gwine be a jolt dat will clap de climate, an' Gord a'mighty only knows what will happen den."

"De end ob de worl' gwine come den," said his companion solemnly.

"Lak 'nough," said the sable scientist, raising his hat and mopping his dripping brow—"lak 'nough; but not eben de angels in heaben knows 'bout dat, an' I neber mak's no 'sertions I cain't prove."

WHETHER you do or do not matters so very little to the world at large.

HYPATIA O'BRIEN—"Nay, nay, Slobby Slocum; yer don't cut no more ice wid me. Fitz Hugh Donnelly kin cut double eagles, spangled banners wid de stars in 'em, waltz, dance jigs, double-shuffle, an' turn han'-springs on de ice. Nixy, Slobby Slocum; yer may be a poet all right, an' let yer tell it, but yer lack de 'verve'—which is French fer 'slap-bang'—dat I require in a lover."

Triplett—"Why not?"

Twynn—"They don't think much of St. Paul at Minneapolis."

FROM JUDGE'S DICTIONARY.

Christmas-tide—A season of sweet festivity and peace, best interpreted by temperate people of moderate wealth who have neither the means nor inclination to satisfy all their desires. There is a pleasing fiction connected with the occasion that each must present every other member of the family some token of regard, and papa is considerately permitted to pay the freight.

Santa Claus—An amiable individual with an aversion to barbers; the fabled proprietor of a reindeer-ranch on the confines of Nowhere. His reindeer yield the milk of human kindness which is annually dispensed among the children of Christendom. "Sandy" is singularly judicious in adapting his presents to the financial standing of the recipients, but would be a much greater benefactor of society were he more of a utilitarian and did not allow his good nature to override his judgment in the selection of gifts.

New-year's—The day prodigal sons and daughters await more or less patiently to renew the moral regeneration neglected since its last recurrence; when the healthy editors recount causes of thankfulness, and dyspeptics enumerate alarming symptoms of societary retrogression, and ordinary mortals determine to relinquish luxuries they are unable longer to procure.

So grieve the more that he insists,
With much-misled mythologists,
The sphinx was partly woman. Share
This view who will, I must conclude
It's a mistaken one, since she

Belies it by the course pursued.

To hold her tongue for centuries
And be part woman still? Oh, no!

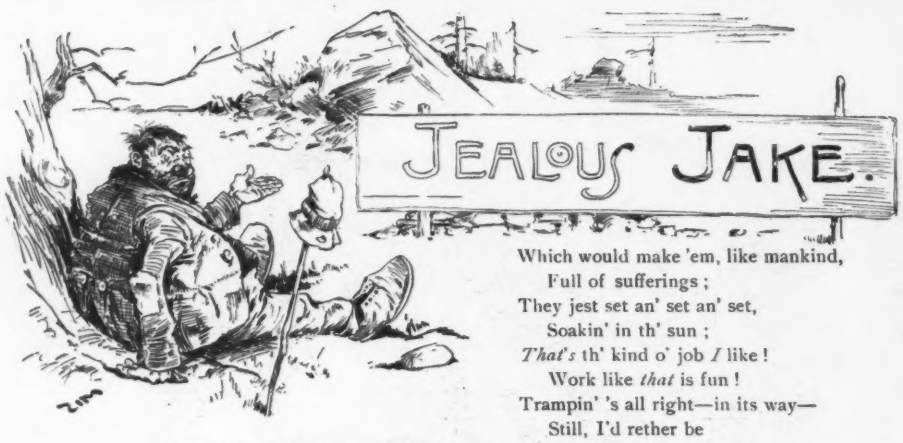
THE OTHER FELLOW.

"WE'RE going sleighing to-morrow night."
Bright were her eyes as the stars are bright,
And I wondered, envious, who might be
The happy component part of we.
I didn't ask, for I didn't dare,
But I promptly hated him, then and there.

"We're going sleighing, or rather, Joe
(Joe was her brother) asked me to go,
But he can't get away and he says if—you
Would drive me he'd like it, and—I would too!
We needn't get home till half-past-ten."
Oh, where was the fellow I hated, then? M. S. B.



GEE! I wish't I was a rock,
Yonder on the hill,
Doin' nothin' all day long,
On'y settin' still;
Jest soliloquizin' like,
For a century,
On the ups and downs of life.
Chumps these mortals be!
Human bein's work an' toil,
Fuss, and fume and fret,
Then they die; but thar's th' rock,
Jest th' same, you bet.
Rocks don't have no discontent;
They don't notice things
Which would make 'em, like mankind,
Full of sufferings;
They jest set an' set an' set,
Soakin' in th' sun;
That's th' kind o' job I like!
Work like that is fun!
Trampin' 's all right—in its way—
Still, I'd rether be
Like a rock thar—in a trance—
Restin' constantly.
Lazy? Me? Well, I do' know!
I'm too strong to work!
Like a rock, I seldom move—
Hurts me jest to shirk.
'F I could have my way on earth
I'd be like a rock;
Wouldn't eat, nor sleep, nor stir—
Wouldn't walk—nor talk;
Wouldn't even dream—or breathe—
Darned ef I would wash!
I'd jest lay still a thousand years
An' rest myself, b'gosh!

WHEN LITTLE JONES SKATED WITH MISS TOPWATE.

The "outer edge" went beautifully on one foot—— ——but not so well—— ——on the other.

IF the history of brewing begins with Egypt, it is equally true that the art of brewing was developed by the Germans. To those who have followed the Egyptian series of advertisements issued by the Pabst Brewing Company, and especially to those who have noticed the accuracy in architectural and artistic detail, it will be a pleasure to know that the series to come will be taken from the era of highest Gothic development, between the years 1100 and 1400. Every line will be in exact harmony with the most realistic interpretation of this phase of Germanic art and architecture of the time, with an occasional life study of the votaries of Gambrinus at the time of his supposed reign. One exception will be made, namely, in typography. The sharp and trying letters of the German will be supplanted by the smooth Italian type of the 15th century, because western eyes are not sufficiently accustomed to the type so dear to the Teutons. With this exception, which is made in deference to the fact that our primary object is of course advertising, which implies, necessarily, legibility, we hope that the artistic side of our public announcements will be scientifically accurate, and as near perfection as the article advertised, namely, Pabst-Milwaukee.

You are probably aware that Pabst Malt Extract, The "Best" Tonic, is also worthy of mention here.

Unimportant But Interesting

WE make the following statement of facts which are indisputable. At the World's Columbian Exposition, the Pabst Brewing Company received the highest award on its keg beers, the highest score on its bottled beer, the highest score on Pabst Malt Extract, The "Best" Tonic. One of its products attained the 100 points of perfection, a marking higher than any product of any other brewery was accorded, which in itself is the supreme award. The line "Supreme Award at the World's Fair," in our advertising is reiterated by every count and fortified by the incontrovertible facts in the case. Public appreciation, however, is the highest of all commendations, and this appreciation is attested by the fact that our sales of Pabst-Milwaukee exceed by 40 per cent the amount of beer sold by any similar institution in the world. We have also received this year at Munich, the gold medal and diploma of honor, which is a complete triumph for American beer in the very cradle of the art of brewing.

THE PRIZE BABY OF KANSAS CITY MO.

Cured of Disfiguring ECZEMA By the CUTICURA REMEDIES

Our baby when three weeks old was badly afflicted with Eczema. Her head, arms, neck, limbs, and nearly every joint in her body was raw and bleeding when we concluded to try CUTICURA REMEDIES. We began with CUTICURA (ointment) and CUTICURA SOAP, and after the first application we could see a change. After we had used them one week some of the sores had healed entirely, and ceased to spread. In less than a month, she was free from scales and blemishes, and to-day has as lovely skin and hair as any child. She was shown at the Grange Fair, and took a premium as the prettiest baby, over sixteen others. MR. & MRS. PARK, 1609 Belleview Ave., Kan. City. Sold everywhere. POTTER DRUG & CHEM. CORP., Boston.

Pears'

is the only soap that cleans the skin and keeps it alive; no alkali in it.

We want the living skin, and we want it clean.

It was Eugene Field, we believe, who made up that delicious story of James Russell Lowell, the Chicago lover of literature, and George Sand. When Lowell was in Chicago he had occasion to speak admiringly of George Sand to a native who was introduced to him as an example of local culture. "Yes," said the native; "Sand was one of the best fellows I ever knew." "You were acquainted with George Sand?" asked Lowell in surprise. "Acquainted?" said the native. "Well, I guess. When I was in Paris I roomed with him."—Buffalo Times.

of winter with its leafless trees and ice-bound streams offers the amateur photographer as many opportunities for artistic work as do the most pleasant days of summer, and one need not think that a Pocket Kodak purchased now need be laid away until summer before using.

The little instrument is hardly larger than a well filled purse, yet it takes beautiful "snowscapes" and is always ready for making a flash-light picture when congenial companions are gathered about the fireside in the long winter evenings.

science

Science is "knowing how." The only secret about Scott's Emulsion is years of science. When made in large quantities and by improving methods, an emulsion must be more perfect than when made in the old-time way with mortar and pestle a few ounces at a time. This is why Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil never separates, keeps sweet for years, and why every spoonful is equal to every other spoonful. An even product throughout.

In other emulsions you are liable to get an uneven benefit—either an over or under dose. Get Scott's. Genuine has a salmon-colored wrapper.
